Main GitHub-repositories

<https://github.com/michaelschiltz/capital-markets-of-the-world>: a 'smart catalog' for the Capital Markets of the World (CMoW) project - ...

“True to the project’s strong ethno-historiographic inspiration, the catalog will allow the exploration of the rationales behind the historical structuring of the information, in order to gain insights for further theoretical and historiographical development. Typical elements of such catalog, apart from conventional Library of Congress Subject Headings, include:

- an item-by-item list of keywords (‘tags’) as they appear in the original primary source, together with a 21st-century ‘transcription’ of the latter’s meaning,
- a description of the contracts underlying the transactions at the time, (if possible and/or deemed relevant) the identity of the members of the board of a given listed company, and
- their connections to politics or certain social groups, and so on..”

<https://github.com/michaelschiltz/even-keel>: research logbooks related to a book project on the late nineteenth-century experiment with hedging exchange rate risk by the so-called Eastern exchange banks. The repository is “... used to document the technical (i.e. mostly database specific) aspects of the book project. It uses the power of the Markdown language to create a sustainable log-book on

1. decisions concerning database architecture,
2. info on which data to include and, more importantly, to exclude,
3. the choice of the software package(s) and algorithms used for visualizing the underlying data,
4. tests done and results used or discarded,
5. the quality and nature of the sources used to construct the dataset, and
6. in general, notes on problems encountered, misunderstandings, and necessary corrections when writing the manuscript's versions.”

Databases

-“YSB: a comprehensive and annotated database of Yokohama Specie Bank Midterm Reports, 1881-1945”, made publicly available on figshare (cf. infra): containing several hundred thousand observations on YSB deposits, money issuance, flow-of-funds between branches, bills, and loans, etc. See https://figshare.com/projects/Yokohama\_Specie\_Bank/2173;

- a research logbook can be found on GitHub (cf. supra): <https://github.com/michaelschiltz/even-keel>

Other research-related interests

I am an advisor/ambassador for figshare (www.figshare.com): figshare allows users to upload any file format to be made visualizable in the browser so that figures, datasets, media, papers, posters, presentations, and file sets can be disseminated in a way that the current scholarly publishing model does not allow.

Figshare has partnerships with PLOS (Public Library of Science), Taylor and Francis, Brill Publishers, Mozilla Science Lab, Github, Nature, and many of the world's leading research universities.
